It is often enclosed in quotes so that the reader understands that the quoted text is the original narrative, or indirect speech. In grammar, when referring to someone else's statement in their own words without any change in the meaning of the statement, it is called indirect speech. Citing the words of a person without using his own word and bringing any change in the meaning of the statement, it is called indirect speech. See the following phrases: Direct speech: He says: "I'm a little nervous." Indirect speech: She says she's a little nervous. In the first sentence, the writer transmits the girl's message using her real words (for example, "I'm a little nervous." In the second sentence, the writer transmits his message but in his words without changing the meaning. Thus, direct and indirect speech each relationship the statement of a person in different ways. Understanding direct and indirect speech in different types of phrases. These phrases can be positive, negative, false or true statements. To convert such sentences into indirect narration, use the rules above, except said is sometimes replaced with said. Look at the following examples: Direct Speech: You say, "I am writing a letter to my brother". Indirect Discourse: You say you weren't writing a letter to your brother. brother. Direct Speech: He told me: "I am writing a letter to my friend." Speech: She told me she was writing a letter to my friend. the force of the speaker. For example: close the door! Please shut the door by tomorrow! To convert these types of phrases into indirect words, follow the rules mentioned above. The reporting verb is changed according to the stated speech in order if the sentence provides a direct command. For example: direct discourse: the teacher told me, "Shut The Door." € "Indirect speech: the teacher ordered me to close the door. The reporting verb has changed according to the speech reported on advice if the sentence gives a piece of advice. For example: direct speech: he told me, âf "You should work hard to pass the exam. Indirect speech for forbidden if the sentence prevents someone to do something. For example: direct speech: told me, â € "Don't smoke." Indirect speech: he proitato a Smoking.examples Direct Speech we told him »â€" he urged him in mind his activity. He said, "A doctor a doctor." He suggested he consult a doctor. He told me, †"Write again ..." He asked me to write it again. He told your father, †"Please allow you for a little time. Â € You asked your father to allow him to leave for a while. My mother told me, "$" Says a lie. My mother forbade me to tell a lie. Questions that ask questions are called question mark. For example, do you live here? Have you ever seen Terminator III? Is it raining? To convert question phrases into an indirect discourse, follow the following rules along with the above mentioned rules: the signalling speech has interrogative words like who, when, as, why, when, then neither if it is used nor any other word is added. A period is placed at the end of the sentence instead of a question mark. Examples direct Discoverse Indirect Disco station? Churches asked «Who is it? Â &» Our emotions are called exclamation sentences. Exclamation points are used at the end of an exclamation phrase. For example: Cheers! We won the game. Ahimea! He failed the test. What is beautiful dog! What a wonderful personality you have! To transform exclamation sentences into indirect speech, follow the following rules together with the rules mentioned above: if there is a interjection, ie ahimÃ, haha, hurray, etc., in the speech reported, then these are omitted Together with an exclaimed with joy, exclaimed with joy, exclaimed with joy, exclaimed with pain, or exclaimed with great astonishment or pain. If it is something or as the beginning of the reported speech, then they are replaced with much or very large. In an indirect sentence, the exclamation phrase becomes an assertive phrase. Examples of speech DirectionDirettoThe said, Â «Cheers! I won the game." Â «But what a beautiful house!". "She exclaimed with great regret that her brother had failed the exam". Nice drama you're writing! You told him with great astonishment that he was writing a good drama. Optional phrase. For example: May you succeed in the test! That you can heal soon! I would like to be rich! To change the optional sentences in indirect speech, follow the following rules together with the word, then the reported verb said is replaced with the desired word. May is changed by force. The exclamation mark is omitted. In the indirect speech, optional sentences become assertive sentences. ExamplingRateRettoParlareStireThe said: "Can you live long! I would like to be rich! Â »I told him:" I wish you were here on Sunday! Â €.
