Meanwhile, even in the meantime you can try the corrections mentioned below. It is one of the most common problems in the Android operating system. Usually when you open an app, you will see a black screen for a few seconds and then the app will block or without an error message. There are some ways to solve this problem. Most of the times could be a temporary loading problem. You just need to press the recent application menu (usually the first button on the left) in the phone. So close the app that has this problem. Now open the app again. It can function normally. Try the difficult restart in your Android phone. Press and hold the "Home" and "Power" buttons at the same time up to 10 seconds. Then release the buttons and hold the "POWER" button until the screen turns on. Now you can try opening the app, it could work well. If none of the previous ones works, you can wait until the phone battery downloads and turn off automatically. After that to load it and press the power button. It could work after this. Finally, if you can't solve it with anything, you may need to uninstall the app and reinstall it. Android usually restore all settings after reinstalling and accessing the app. You can see if this resolves it. Also in some rare cases, even the reinstallation step does not work. If this is your case, try installing previous versions of the app. Good luck! There are few situations that can cause the load problem in the mobile apps. The GCMOB HD app server may be idle and this is caused the loading problem. Please try after a few minutes. Your wifi / mobile data connection does not work properly.
