Just like you can see a beautiful painting with an equally attractive frame, preserve the works of art of nature. Flanking a bank for windows with gently picked curtain panels combined by a wide dressing that crosses the upper part of the window. If exposure from external elements is a concern, pure can hide behind the fabric panels and be designed through the opening when necessary. Advertising Advertising If you blowing the sunlight or howling the winter winds are calling, mounting the adherent treatments within the frame of each window to help you isolate your room. Tent-Flap style curtain panels offer clean lines that look beautiful is open and closed depending on weather conditions and privacy needs. With today's worldwide selection of fabric materials and plethora of rather played fabric models, Roman shades are far from simply practical coverage. Embellish shades with binding or decorative contrast finish and you treated the group of windows with style and function. ADVERTISEMENT TRAILING curtain panels from a decorative rod are the most classic of the treatments for any window configuration. It accentuates the architecture of multiple windows by suspending a narrow panel between each box. For a bay window that designs over the imprint of the room, simply mount the auction on the first floor wall. As tried and true as the window itself, the folded dredging panels offer elegance in the simplest of treatments. For a more formal and decorative statement add a pleated angle suitcase to imitate sophisticated Jabots. Or for a more relaxed effect, the upper panels with an exceeded flouncy screamed. Unify a pair of double windows Side with asymmetrical swag draped through the upper part of each and waterfall the edges of the external window. For spaces that require a touch of privacy, transparent layer under the decorative swag. Advertise advertisement The beauty of the versatile double hanging is its capacity to wear panels for more casual curtains or more formal drapes of mugging. For sophistication refinement or great size, pour the rich and complete panels on a front rod and bustle one or o Slightly aside to match Tieback. To open a double-hanging window on a hot summer day it is the treasure of the refreshing breeze that floats in the room. Capture the visually sensation by framing the window with flush panels cropped at the rings that draw easily through a decorative auction. Complete contemporary charm of the walk with a personalized and pleated shadow. Mounted neatly inside the window frame, these fabric treatments improve the design of the cleaning line with a soft touch. Advertising winning a rebirth in design with its retro style, the shadow of the roller enjoys many decorative options in fantasy facades, embellished edges and fascinating shots. ECHO The booklike function of the walking window with panels hanging with swinging arm sticks (Sheers Ary works particularly well). A declined decline on almost all windows, dredging panels can be formal or relaxed. Tab panels provide casual comfort to any space. Simple advertising, clean lines complete formose arc windows. The shutters mounted on double-stop windows or bassetto under an arc plane provide a classic design with light and privacy control. For further privacy, the fan shutters adapt to many forms of standard arch forms add natural light more visual height to a room. A curtain rod mounted on the ceiling improves height makeup, while the double fabric panels - transparent on the upper connected to the opaque queues - leaves the extra light brilli. The houses of elegant and traditional furnishings often have transoms. When the style directs a full and robust windows dressing, treat the main collection of windows with dredging panels connected by a suitcare (adding blinds below for privacy, if necessary), but mount the auction as you would without the transoms That the architectural addition has still liked it. Advertising for a soft touch applied directly to the French doors, panels for tents to hang belts into halfway to let the light enter. Do not forget the view from the outdoor living area: use a coordination fabric for tent backs. With attentive positioning, even the most sophisticated window treatments can be applied to French doors. Crown the frame with a curvy frame that masks a cane from which the stream of curtains panels. Make sure the panels can move aside to allow you to open. Follow the natural flow of the sliding door with fabric panels mounted above on a sliding track. The Visual Parallel is surprising while the stacker function keeps the decorative treatment practical. Advertising use horizontal nuances or curtains mounted on the wall above the door frame to give privacy and light control doors. To mask their less aesthetic headers, high nuances with a decorative suitcase. Make sure the avalanche and the raised curtains are mounted enough to easily allow the passage through the door below. Here in the Extremetech bunker, where Bleeding-Edge technology comes to meet its creator, most of us have now used Windows 8 consumer preview for a few days. We have Windows 8 running on tablets, laptops, ultrabooks and, of course, desktop. There is some doubts in our minds that Windows 8 will be a fantastic Touchscreen operating system. On Tablet, the new screen startup interface and its meter-style apps are a joy. Also on laptops and desktops, where desktop and metro interfaces meet with a jarring accident, it is difficult That the overall experience is fast, fluid, and actually funny. If you used Windows XP, Vista, and 7 for the last 10 years, you will certainly request the time to get used to Windows 8 and-mouse keyboard      ,~ "but will grow upon you, you will assure you (even if Matteo Murray is " Definitely disagree). One of the largest grips we have heard in recent months, since the release of the developer's preview is that Windows 8 is effectively two completely different interfaces spurse together - if you don't   "  king A power user, just think about it for a moment: how often do you use the Start menu in Windows 7? If you like them, apps app for the taskbar. Now I used Windows 8 for two two 1A and I used the new boot screen only a handful of times. Except for research applications, are able to avoid the splash screen entirely one and even then, when I hit the Windows key, the transition is much less painful than I thought it would be short be.In, you You might actually enjoy Windows 8 on your desktop. EA   s perfectly normal to have doubts about something that seems to be incredibly different, but in reality, if the main Windows activities are playing, word processing, or do something else     desktoppy, a Windows 8 is very , very similar to Windows 7, even better, because   Microsoft must ensure that Windows 8 works well on a low power laptop computers and tablets, Windows 8 is basically faster and efficient than Windows 7 on a high-power desktop rig, Windows 8 flies! The following is ExtremeTech    s ultimate guide to Windows 8 on your desktop. It is basically a list of tips and tricks that we  ve collected over the last few months of using the Developer Preview, and now the Consumer Preview. Suffice to say, it's probably necessary to install Windows 8 before continuing; or at least virtualize VirtualBox.Keyboard shortcutsFirst of all, if you haven  t   historically been a fan of keyboard shortcuts, it is to be used in Windows 8. To make the most touch-friendly interface, some features on a Like button ignition are now much more difficult to achieve with your mouse. Fortunately, Microsoft has added a couple of keyboard shortcuts that largely improve the     pain.Alt-F4 In one of the best changes from Developer Preview, you can close Metro apps using Alt-F4! Key-Windows this opens the new system tray, which flows from the right. If you hit Space or Enter opens the Metro Control Panel. If you then hit enter, you can turn off the computer. (This is the fastest way to stop or restart!) Windows Key     If you have a multi-monitor setup, clicking on the start screen with the Windows key is actually quite painless, and a great way to check on your mail, instant messages, and so on. Tapping the button again hides the Windows boot screen and return to the previous app (it could be the desktop, or another Metro app). If you start typing the name of an app from the Start screen, Windows will automatically start searching for it (like Windows 7) Windows Key-F     If you specifically want to search for files, rather than applications, use Windows-Key -F. searches the Windows Key-W settings.Windows Key-C one of the most annoying menu to reach in Windows 8, with a keyboard and a mouse in any case, is the Charms menu. Fortunately, you can also use Windows Key-C, and then the arrow keys.Alt tab A-Alt-Tab, believe it or not, the application goes through desktop and Metro apps. This may take a little 'getting used to this to.Windows-Tab cycles through the Metro applications. I know you    re probably devastated: The 3d Flipa an Aero in Windows Vista and Windows 7 is no longer Key A-Z in a Metro app, this opens up the App Bar (ie the APPA menu s) . T Arena Unfortunately there any keyboard shortcuts for selecting items from the App Bar, but hopefully they    ll be added before release.Windows-page retail up to this switch that shield the Metro interface (ie the startup screen and any Metro apps) looks on. The switch is very fast (Ita s kind of fun to just hit the Windows-page over and over Over a) Of course, this is only useful if you have a multi-monitor setup.Use these keyboard shortcuts the most often as possible until they become instinctive. Lot of Windows 7 shortcuts still work, even but with slightly different functionality. Win-D, for example, again returns to the desktop, but now has a one-tap function (return metro per desktop), and two-tap (both desktop screens) page. next: Tips for use and tricks tricks tricks
